

2/2
January 8, 1973

the main thrust of their work is to review, present, and anticipate national water resources problems, making such projections of water requirements as may be necessary and further consider economic and social consequences of water resource development. Now this report and it's very, very lengthy, composed of over 300 pages, a preliminary report was made at the convention that was held in Salt Lake City, this fall, and out of that report, we gleamed these several paragraphs that if

(End of Belt #6)